SILVER was on a most decided boom yesterday. The Treasury Department at Washington paid $1.185 to $1.1834 for two hundred and ninety thousand ounces, while in the New York and San Francisco open markets it reached $1.1734 and in London 54 pence, the highest price there in twelve years. The predictions of the friends of the white metal, that its full remonitization by this country would soon raise it to a par with gold seem sure to be verified. When this is done, the monometal countries of Europe will be dropping into line with us for a double standard and the United States will have taken the position, justly hers, of-regulating the money market of the IT IS BLACKMAIL, EH?
